The Glass and Dough.
The Gibson Candidate.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are solely those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.)

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE spending his summer vacation in Wisconsin reminds you of Ruth, only, unlike Ruth, President Coolidge, "amid the alien corn" and middle western farmers, will defy criticism of his McNary-Haugen veto. Every farmer will admit that the president has the strength of his convictions, and farmers like that.

ONE professor in Pennsylvania told the Federal Trade Commission in Washington yesterday that he had been paid $250 a piece for three lectures on public utilities.

The professor was not doing "under cover work" for Pennsylvania utility corporations, it seems, simply wanted to eliminate incorrect opinions about their business.

THE bandit business grows and improves.

"Don't make a squawk or we'll kill you." That was the first command of bandits, holding up the Broadmoor country club near Indianapolis. "Throw the glass and the dough in the sack," was the second command, when the bandits lined up against the wall two hundred ladies and gentlemen enjoying a dance. "The glass" meant diamonds and other jewelry. The collectors of "glass and dough" made their getaway.

WILL ROGERS is nominated for president by Charles Dana Gibson and his able son, Langhorne Gibson, in their publication, "Life."

Rogers, who says he "chews to run," calls his a "bankless campaign," and "the nomination leaves me dazed, and if I can stay dazed, I ought to make a splendid candidate."

WHI Rogers is young and doesn't realize how much truth there is in that.

An election to the presidency dazes a man so thoroughly that it takes him about four years to get over it. And by that time they are thinking about another candidate.

FAVORITE sons of various states will meet at the Republican convention angry, because their states have been "invaded" by Herbert Hoover.

Those favorite sons won't be as angry as the professional politicians.

There is profit in trading one favorite son against another, or trading all of them for a consideration when the time comes. When favorite sons fade away politicians' profits fade also.

A CHILD seven years old is kidnapped in Ohio and killed under horrible circumstances.

The murder of that little girl is another achievement of our bootlegging age. Charles J. Hoppe, with a wife and one-year-old child, who, police say, confessed the killing, and says he was "full of bootleg whiskey and my recollection of the killing is vague."

H. Z. MITCHELL'S "Sentinel" at Bemidji, Minn., wins the prize as the best weekly in the National Editorial contest. This is a good time to remind the public in general, and national advertisers in particular, that the country's most important organs of public opinion and protectors of public welfare.

And their advertising value, per line, is not excelled by any publication of any kind.

The reader of a country weekly buys everything, from shingles on the roof to cement in the cellar floor, and every advertiser has in him a possible customer.

POISONS BABY, GETS LIFE TERM

Mother Who "Couldn't be Bothered" is Unemotional.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., June 2.—Mrs. Johanna Reese, 34, the mother who "couldn't be bothered," was to be taken to the Detroit house of correction today to begin a life sentence for the murder of her two-year old son, Charles Raymond.

Stolid faced and unemotional, Mrs. Reese appeared before Superior Court Judge Leonard D. Verrier late yesterday and pleaded guilty to administering carbolic acid to her baby. In her confession she had said he was "too much bother."

In a voice as cold as steel, she told of uncorking the bottle and placing it to the child's lips, just after he had awakened from a nap.

"He gulped a large mouthful of the acid, probably thinking I was feeding him," she recited. "Then he kind of whined once or twice and laid still."

MASKED BANDITS TORTURE FARMER

WIRE CUTTER PINCHES NOSE, CHISEL BURNS VICTIM'S FEET

Try in Vain to Find Hiding Place of Money.

GET BUT $30

John Prysi, 75, New Philadelphia, is Attacked.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., June 2.—John Prysi, 75, wealthy Goshen township farmer, was subjected to torture by two masked bandits in his home early today in a vain attempt to force the aged man to reveal the hiding place of money which the robbers thought was secreted about the house.

Stick Victim With Pins.

Prysi was under the care of physicians this morning following three hours of torture at the hands of the bandits. The thugs pinched his nose with wire cutters, burned his feet with a hot chisel, and struck him over the head with a blackjack.

This failing to make their victim talk, the thieves tied him hand and foot and stuck with pins in further efforts to learn of the money they thought was about.

The bandits entered the house about 1:30 o'clock this morning. They took Mr. and Mrs. Prysi from their beds, locked Mrs. Prysi in a room, and proceeded to torture the husband. They remained until 4:30 this morning in a vain hunt for money.

The house was ransacked from top to bottom, furniture was pulled apart in the search. The total of their loot was but $30 found in a dresser drawer.

Wife Releases Man.

After the bandits had left the house, Mrs. Prysi worked her way out of the room in which she had been locked, and released her husband. They found that the telephone had been disconnected, and were forced to go to the house of a neighbor to call the sheriff.

Tuscarawas county authorities, working on the case this morning, have failed to find clues to the identity of the burglars. The men were described by Mr. and Mrs. Prysi as about the same size, weighing about 140 pounds. As both wore masks it was impossible to see their features, the couple said.

Prysi is not seriously injured, although suffering considerably from shock, physicians said.

GIRL VICTIM OF POLICE DOG DIES 21 DAYS AFTER ATTACK

Mrs. Alma Herrington Whitehill Succumbs in Home.

RABIES BLAMED

Canine, Owned by Patrolman Roth, Killed.

Mrs. Alma Herrington Whitehill, 26, wife of Carl Whitehill, Minerva street, died in her home at 11:30 o'clock this morning from rabies which developed after she was bitten by a German police dog, owned by Patrolman Herman Roth, about three weeks ago.

Mrs. Whitehill, who took the Pasteur treatment to guard against rabies, apparently was recovering from the effects of the wound on the cheek inflicted by the dog, until about two days ago.

Fearing that the animal was mad, Patrolman Roth killed the dog the day after it attacked the woman. The head was shipped to Columbus and word was received a few days later that the dog was a victim of rabies.

Mrs. Whitehill leaves her husband, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Herrington, Sr., one brother, Oliver Herrington Jr., and three sisters, Mrs. Phyllis Emmerling and Mrs. Della Morgan, all of this city and Mrs. Charlotte Byers, Salem. She attended the First Methodist Episcopal church.

HUSBAND, GIRL ESCAPE WITH MINOR HURTS AS CAR UPSETS

Mrs. Belle McDevitt Victim of Crash at West Point.

NECK IS BROKEN Machine Swerves From Road, Goes Over Embankment.

One person was killed and two others were injured when a sedan, driven by Lawrence McDevitt, 45, night foreman at the Pennsylvania avenue car barns of The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company, and a resident of St. Clair township near the Country club, rolled over a 40-foot embankment along the Lincoln highway, near West Point, at 9 o'clock this morning.

The dead: Mrs. Belle McDevitt 40, neck believed to have been broken.

The injured: Lawrence McDevitt, 43, husband of the victim, shoulder blade broken and back injured.

Lois McDevitt, 14, their daughter, left leg fractured.

Coroner J. M. Van Fossan, East Palestine, will conduct an inquest at the Miller funeral home this afternoon.

The husband and daughter were removed to their homes after their injuries were dressed at the City hospital.

The McDevitts, on their way to Lisbon, had just passed the Carney gasoline station at West Point when McDevitt, at the wheel of the car, pulled to the left side of the road to pass another automobile which was headed in the same direction.

Noticing another machine owned by W. S. Sanders, Rogers, approaching, McDevitt again pulled over to the right lane of traffic. His right wheels are said to have dropped from the concrete road to the dirt section of the highway. When he attempted to swing the car back, the machine swerved across the road through a guard fence and over an embankment.

The car overturned twice and came to a stop on its side. Mrs. McDevitt and her daughter were thrown clear of the machine, the former being found near a run at the foot of the declivity.

Third Fatality Within Week.

Sanders was the first person to reach the injured. He raised Mrs. McDevitt to a more comfortable position while a call was sent for an ambulance and a physician. The woman died about 20 minutes later and before the arrival of Dr. Seward Harris, Lisbon physician.

McDevitt and his daughter were brought to the City hospital in the Eells ambulance from Lisbon. The body of the victim was removed to the Miller funeral home, West Sixth street. Dr. Albert J. Michaels attended the injured, after which they were taken to their homes.

The automobile, purchased about three months ago, was almost totally wrecked. It was brought here by McElravy Brothers' wrecker at noon.

Mrs. McDevitt's death makes the third automobile fatality in Columbiana county within a week. Frank W. Ferguson, proprietor of a general store at New Waterford, died in a Salem hospital Sunday afternoon from the effects of burns sustained when his car took fire following a collision on the Columbiana-New Waterford road Saturday night, while Ralph Watkins, 12 son of Mr. and Mrs. George Watkins, La Crosse, met death Thursday when struck by a milk truck driven by Robert Cole, West Point.

East Liverpool — America's Pottery Center.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1928.

Y. M. C. A. Campaign

Citing the fact that "he who helps a boy to become a good and strong man makes a contribution of the first order to the welfare of society," the Young Men's Christian association will appeal to the people of the East Liverpool district next Tuesday to meet a deficit in its budget for the year ending April 30, 1929.

One hundred volunteer workers—pottery manufacturers, merchants and professional men—under the leadership of Attorney W. H. Vordrey and chiefs of two divisions will meet for dinner Monday night, preparatory to launching a one-day canvass.

The goal is $15,000, representing the gap between estimated operating expenses and collections, expense excess over earnings, contingent fund and payment on the building debt.

And in return for this investment in the youth of the present, the Y offers a program of activities that will pay dividends in improving the morals as well as the health of Young America.

The work of the association is so well known that it is unnecessary to go into details. It suffices to say that during the last year the scope of activities included Bible classes, swimming lessons, basketball and other boys' sports, Sunday afternoon club sessions at which men successful in many walks of life lectured, summer camp programs, etc. In addition, gym classes for women and girls as well as men and boys were regular features.

And, too, the Y also serves as a community center, for the Fourth street building, besides offering facilities for banquets, has been the meeting place for Rotarians, Lions, Boy Scouts, Sunday School Teachers' Training class, church units, Ministerial association, dental society, industrial, business men's and women's clubs and other civic organizations.

The Young Men's Christian association is a asset to the community and merits support.

Merchant Marine Law

The president having signed the Jones-White merchant marine bill, thus making it a law, a real development of our merchant marine may be anticipated, not a development in the number of vessels—we have far too many now, such as they are—but rather a development in quality of service.

Told in short form, the bill authorizes a replacement program for the government merchant marine, requires sanction of but five of the seven members of the shipping board for the sale of vessels to private operators, doubles the existing $125,000,000 construction loan fund of the board and liberalizes the ocean mail contract system.

The trouble with our government merchant marine has been that shipping board has not had sufficiently advantageous offers to justify the sale of the vessels now being operated by the government or had authority to make loans and offer terms which would call out better offers, nor has it had authority to make such replacements and improvements as would put it on a par in the matter of service with the merchant marines of other nations.

The newly-enacted law will enable the shipping board either to develop it under government operation and make it a marine commensurate with our standing as a world power or offer such terms for private operation as to make it desirable for purchase and development. For years it has suffered from this handicap which has just been removed by legislative action with executive approval. The chief handicap which yet remains is the uncertainty of occupation of those engaged in the operation of the services, both those engaged ashore as well as those afloat. This uncertainty is bound to obtain until it is definitely determined whether our government merchant marine is to remain such, or sold and turned over to private operation under the American flag. The new law should work to the hastening of the determination of this question.

Radium Poisoning

It is a terrible death that several young women are dying in Orange, N. J. They have been poisoned by radium paint, in the course of their employment—painting watches with a radium preparation. The stuff lodges in their bones, and there continues sending out its mysterious rays, some of which are deadly. They disintegrate stimulating. Then comes disease, with lingering torture, sure to be fatal in the end.

Their predicament might have been avoided if as much had been known about radium paint when they started to work as is known now. It came from carelessness. The painters were in the habit of "pointing" their brushes with their lips as they worked. From the lips the radium worked into the blood and bones. The brushes, of course, can be pointed in some other way.

It is a timely warning to industrial employers and workers everywhere of the strange, new perils that often develop in modern industry, and the need of expert knowledge and safety precautions. It is a good illustration, too, of the familiar warning to children from cautious mothers: "Never put anything into your mouth but food."

Automatic Stoker

An instructor in descriptive geometry at a well known scientific school has turned manufacturer. He has invented and is making an automatic furnace stoker. Feeding the coal into the fire chamber of the furnace is regulated by a thermostat. The hopper which holds the coal to be used contains a supply for a period of 24 to 36 hours. The automatic stoker follows the under-fed principle, which its inventor says obtains the maximum heat from the fuel.

The inventor also says his device was not planned to save the tired householder the arduous labor of shoveling coal all winter. The first purpose of the invention is to assure a steady, economical and even furnace fire, saving fuel costs and regulating household heat more effectively than with a human shoveler.

But no one is going to scorn the device because of its original purpose. Obviously it is going to be a back-saver, along with its other economies. A lot of people will be glad of an automatic stoker small enough for a private home on that account, who fail to appreciate all its fine points of scientific combustion.

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 2.—What will Washington be like in 2000 A. D.?

No magic crystal is required to envision that city of the future, nor is its destiny to be read in the stars. To conjure up a picture of the capital as it will look seventy-five years from now, the latter day prophet consults maps, blue prints, and architects' sketches; he considers the trend of municipal development everywhere and estimates the value of recent inventions. Then, pooling all of his findings, he produces a vision of the whole.

Unlike many cities, Washington has never been permitted to grow haphazardly. It was laid out according to a definite plan and its development is being continually plotted by experts—men who can not live long enough to see the plans they make completed, who, in turn, will pass the work on to generations yet unborn.

A member of the present National Capital park and planning commission, in charge of this work, Charles W. Eliot, 24, is willing to assume the role of seer and to venture a few predictions regarding the Washington of 2000 A. D. The first glimpse is from a great passenger air liner high in the clouds.

Octopus-like, the city is shown sprawling across the Potomac into two states which are linked by the new chain bridge. Great highways radiate from the central business section into areas now developed, constituting the arms. Each highway is lined with shops and, flanking it on either side, are streets lined with apartment houses. Beyond the apartment houses are single family residences. Between the arms of the octopus are parks.

The problem of heavy motor traffic between cities seems to have been simplified. The great trucks and vans no longer tear through the center of the city, great monsters of machines that formerly worked havoc with the streets and endangered the lives of the people. They travel the by-pass routes, especially built for this purpose.

Pennsylvania avenue is scarcely to be recognized, so drastic have been the changes. China Town has vanished; so have most of the little, shabby shops, with their window displays of dusty souvenirs, arranged to catch the tourist's eye. On the left as we proceed toward the treasury building, the land has been parked as far as Sixth street, and from Sixth street to Fifteenth rises a notable array of buildings which extends back to B street, N. W. This is the federal triangle. Each building is designed to harmonize with its neighbors and houses some department or independent branch of the federal government.

On the opposite side, from Third to Sixth street, rises another pretentious building, the municipal center, which extends back as far as D street and occupies four city blocks. This is the municipal center where the business of city government is transacted.

The visitor might think he were in Paris, for the architectural plan closely resembles that of the famous Place de la Concorde. It is a magnificent structure, modern in every sense. Underground chambers provide parking space for automobiles and street car lines, diverted from the Avenue, disappear beneath it to proceed through a tunnel to Union station.

East Capitol street has been done over into an avenue of the states. It is lined with dignified buildings that serve as embassies for citizens and statesmen from various sections of the country. At the end a giant stadium has been built.

The Washington of 2000 will represent a long step forward since the one-hundredth anniversary of the capital's founding in 1900. Washington was a fair-sized city then with horse cars, which were a novelty, and an occasional automobile. Traffic was therefore easy to handle except, occasionally, when a horse ran away or a lady on a bicycle collided on the Avenue with some old colored woman bringing home the wash. The city of congress had been open four years. Few of the present buildings lining Seventeenth street had been erected and the government was raising fish in ponds at the foot of the monument.

Questions And Answers

By Frederic J. Haskin.

Many readers send in questions signed only with initials, asking that the answers appear in the newspaper. The space is limited and would not accommodate a fraction of such requests. The answers published are ones that may interest many readers, rather than the one who asks the question only. All questions should be accompanied with the writer's name and address and a two-cent stamp for reply. Send your question to the East Liverpool Review Information Bureau, Frederic J. Haskin, Director, Washington, D. C.

Q. Did the National Geographic Society contribute to the expenses of Commander Byrd's projected trip to the South Pole? A. W. D.

A. A grant of $25,000 was voted from the society's research fund toward the expenses of the expedition to the Antarctic Continent.

Q. Who is the best known Mexican aviator? D. G.

A. Capt. Emilio Carranza is sometimes called the Mexican Lindbergh.

Q. Does Babe Ruth use a heavy bat? H. O.

A. He is supposed to use the heaviest bat that is made. He uses a 52 ounce bat. The average bat used by other players is from 38 ounces to 40 ounces.

Q. In a school publication I observed "John Smith, ex-24." What does the "ex-24" signify? H. C. N.

A. The 24 refers to his class in college or school. Ex indicates that he was not graduated.

Q. Can you give the origin of the picture of a dog listening to the talking machine? L. C. C.

A. The idea was originally conceived by an English artist named Francis Beaurand, who appeared at the offices of the Gramophone Company, Ltd., of London, with a finely executed oil painting. This painting portrayed his favorite fox terrier listening to one of the earliest models of the gramophone. The idea was well received by the officers of the Gramophone Company and an arrangement was made with the artist whereby he surrendered the picture and the right of duplicating it. Later it was adopted by the Victory Company in America as its trade mark.

Once Overs

Daily you think yourself into a tired condition.

It is easy to let down and give way to a little feeling of weariness.

Giving the imagination a little leeway and you believe that you are at the limit of your strength and endurance.

More than likely you are at the limit of your ambitions.

It is probable that every day, as you go home, you think of how tired and worn you are.

When you reach home you are convinced that you need a long rest or a tonic or a trip somewhere to recuperate, and not one thought have you given to the sour face with which you greet the family.

Why don't you try to add a little cheerfulness to the family circle?

Have you not noticed that when you get away from your work a little early to enjoy some pleasure, you don't feel tired, and you worked harder than usual in order to get away?

This ought to convince you that most of the tired feeling you experience is the result of encouraging your imagination, and it may be that your family has noticed it too, and that accounts for the lack of sympathy which you get at home on these tired nights.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, June 2.—This is the story of the return of a woman to her native America after living for years the life of an adventurer in European capitals. Thoroughly disillusioned and with the bloom of beauty fading, she landed with a total capital of $2.

Her amours and amorettes have long been topical all over the continent, and she has written of them in American magazines. One fortune after another was wasted in profligacy, but always she was able to find another millionaire.

But in the last year or so she appeared to have fallen on hard days, and became somewhat of a hanger on around the little circular bars of Paris where Americans rather. Finally she decided to spend the sunset days in her own country.

A faithful maid of the more opulent past accompanied her. In a week the matter of a hotel bill became so pressing her presence became known through a newspaper story of her debt. Her plight stirred the ashes of a dead love. In the mail came a thousand-dollar bill.

That was the beginning of the mutual admiration society formed by several former admirers. They clubbed together and rented a fine old home in the East Sixties, completely redecorating and refurbishing it in magnificent fashion.

In gratitude her home has become a private rendezvous for many old flames where they lay bring social drinking. She is queening it as hostess as she did in the days of her villas and town houses.

Famous literary figures drop into her saloon now and then for a cup of coffee or smile syrup and an exchange of gossip. Her mansion has become smart because it is ultra. And she is an illustrious example of hard-boiled New York's sentimentality.

Across the portals of a 44th street hotel's hat check room is "No tip, please." This has been there for years and is likely the only tipless gesture that has not cracked under the strain.

YOUR HEALTH

An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth A Pound of Cure.

—By Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

There is no greater boon than the ability to sleep well and no greater curse than light and fitful sleep. You may be a millionaire, but unless you can sleep you will soon be a wreck.

The other day I read about a murderer who surrendered himself to the authorities. When asked why, he said, "I must have sleep. There seemed no particular remorse so far as the murder was concerned, but the fear of discovery deprived him of sleep and that affliction drove him to the sheriff."

Loss of sleep, or insomnia, as the doctors call it, is one of the exciting causes of insanity. Without sleep the nervous system breaks down. To keep the brain and nervous system in working order there must be regular hours of rest and sleep.

Many things are responsible for insomnia. There is no greater factor than worry. One of the earliest lessons you should learn is to cast off your worries. Never take them to bed with you. You will get no refreshing and restoring sleep if you do.

Improper diet and irregular habits are destructive of refreshing sleep. Constipation permits the development of poisonous substances which damage the nervous system. At least seven persons out of ten who have sleepless nights will be found to suffer from constipation. Needless to say, habitual worry diet and improper manner of living frequently result in constipation and consequently in insomnia.

If the bad habits of eating or of living result in undernourishment, naturally the nervous system suffers. In consequence, inability to sleep may follow.

Excessive smoking and the use of drugs that act upon the heart may cause insomnia. Whenever the heart is disturbed in its regular and normal action the sleep is likely to be affected.

Of course, noise will break the rest of the soundest sleeper. He may not be conscious of its influence, but his rest is sure to be disturbed if he sleeps in a noisy place.

Poor ventilation is another disturbing factor. The sleeping room must be properly aired or the sleep will not be refreshing.

If you suffer from insomnia let me beg of you not to take drugs in order to get your rest. Many a life has been ruined by resort to sleep-producing drugs. Sleeping powders, sleeping potions, sleeping drops, are all dangerous. They lead to drug addiction and to conditions far worse than insomnia.

Try a tepid bath. Get into a tub of water only a degree or two above the temperature of the body. Stay there for ten minutes or even half an hour. Then dry off without vigorous rubbing and go to bed.

Sometimes a drink of water or a glass of warm milk will promote sleep. A full meal is harmful, but a very light lunch may be helpful.

Deep, regular breathing seems to induce sleep sometimes. Sleeping in the open air, or with windows wide open, will bring slumber when the ordinary atmosphere fails.

Honest fatigue is the best remedy. Exercise in the open air until you are really tired will do wonders.

It may be necessary to read for an hour or so to get your mind off your worries. But the best rule is to make the bed a place for sleeping and go to it determined to slumber.

John Bunyan's Anniversary.

Although John Bunyan, "the inspired tinker," was born in November, 1628, the town and shire of Bedford, England, is celebrating his birth this week, in order to assure fair weather for the affair. Bunyan actually was born in Elstow, which is near Bedford, but it was at the latter place that he spent 12 years in jail, during which he wrote his celebrated "Pilgrim's Progress."

Bunyan, a nonconformist, went to jail because he persisted in preaching after laws passed during the Reformation had made it illegal to conduct divine services except in accordance with the forms of the Establishment church. While in jail he supported his family by making tagged laces.

Bunyan, who early in life followed his father's trade of tinkering, was reformed through the "Godly works" of his first wife. His own writings and his sermons picture him as having lived a sinful life before his first marriage, but history fails to bear out his contentions that he was so steeped in sin. He probably exaggerated his rather venial faults. Dancing and bell ringing were deadly sins, in his estimation, and it is possible he at one time indulged in both. He served for a short time in the Civil war (1644-46). He died in London in 1688, famed for his writing and preaching.—Columbus Dispatch.

Sunday School Lesson "FELLOWSHIP OF HIS SUFFERINGS"

Golden Text:—Not what I will, but what thou wilt.—Mark 14:36. Mark 14, 17-25, 32-36.

17 And when it was evening he cometh with the twelve.
18 And as they sat and were eating, Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, One of you shall betray me, even he that eateth with me.

19 They began to be sorrowful, and to say unto him one by one, Is it I?
20 And he said unto them, It is one of the twelve, he that dipperth with me in the dish.

21 For the Son of man goeth, even as it is written of him; but woe unto that man through whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had not been born.

22 And as they were eating, he took bread, and when he had blessed, he brake it, and gave to them, and said, Take ye: this is my body.

23 And he took a cup, and when he had given thanks, he gave to them; and they all drank of it.

24 And he said unto them, This is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many.
25 Verily I say unto you, I shall no more drink of the fruit of the vine, until that day when I drink it new in the kingdom of God.

32 And they came unto a place which was named Gethsemane; and he saith unto his disciples, Sit ye here, while I pray.

33 And he taketh with him Peter and James and John, and began to be greatly amazed, and sore troubled.

34 And he saith unto them, My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death; abide ye here, and watch.

35 And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass away from him.

36 And he said, Abba, Father, all things are possible unto thee; remove this cup from me: howbeit not what I will, but what thou wilt.

OLD AMERICAN HANDSHAKE OVERDONE SAYS HOOSIER AUTHOR

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Declaring that the "old American handshake had been greatly overdone," Meredith Nicholson, widely known Indiana author, spoke before a group of business men here on the subject of "The Courtesies of Life as They Apply to Men and Women."

Elaborating on the subject of handshaking in replying to a question from one of his audience, Nicholson decried the type of person who "paws all over you and thumps your back painfully" as a form of greeting. "The salesman who comes to you with outstretched hand without you taking the initiative is a little bit presumptuous," Nicholson said. "He should wait for you to indicate how you desire to be greeted, unless your acquaintance is of long standing. The same condition should exist in the manner of greeting women and other persons. They should be given the privilege of taking the initiative."

Stricken Girl Blames Self for Radium Poisoning

By SHIRLEY KIRKE
International Illustrated News Staff Correspondent

"ONE LIFE.—A little gleam of time between two eternities."—Carlyle.

Five women in New Jersey have been doomed to death by radium poisoning. One, Miss Grace Fryer, has offered her body, after death, to science that data thus obtained may help save others.

But Dr. Alexander O. Goettler, New York toxicologist, made a more startling suggestion. He said: "We need more than bodies of victims. What is vitally wanted is for one of these unfortunate young women now in the throes of the poisoning to undergo experiments."

That science may have the laboratory it requires in its quest of a cure of the dread disease, Katherine Schaub, of Newark, came forward with an offer of sacrifice far and beyond any other made. She proffered her living body for experiment.

That the medical world no longer be helpless, Miss Schaub, who wants to live, though life has become a torment, is ready to hazard a hastened death. Others have willed their bodies to science.

Miss Schaub, like the American soldier in Cuba who gave his living form to the yellow fever germ and thus helped save mankind from the ravages of the disease, stands ready for the great sacrifice of letting science experiment with her while she breathes.

"I would like their assurance that their experiments would not hasten my death," she said in her home in Newark. "However, I am willing, with my fullest confidence in the doctors, to undergo experiments that may save the other girls. Life is sweet, and I would rather go along as I am now than die suddenly from an experiment that went wrong. All I ask, beyond assurance they will do their best to protect my life, is that they keep me in the sunshine."

There is a spiritual touch in her offer, for she finds an opportunity to assuage the pangs of recollection. It was as instructor in an Orange, N. J., watch factory that she directed other employees to touch radium-tipped brushes to their lips. "I did not know it would harm them," she sighed. "I did it myself."

Youth

By Fanny Darrell

Youth! The carnival of life! When everything is an adventure and care has no place in the vocabulary. The dearest, sweetest time of one's whole life, when one looks at everything and everybody through rose tinted spectacles.

These are the days when one lays the foundation for all the rest of life. The joyous, care-free, happy days when each day brings hopes of the Prince Charming who will turn life into one grand, sweet song! Whose love will brighten every hour and bring a fulfillment of all the dear dreams of Youth.

So guard them well, these youthtime days, for they come but once, but ah, what dear, sweet memories they leave to store in Memory's casket.

GENERAL ELECTRIC
Refrigerator

When you buy an electric refrigerator, do a bit of investigating on your own. Look under the cabinet, look carefully inside it, and, above all things, listen to it.

When you look under the cabinet do you find moving parts of machinery or no machinery at all? In the General Electric Refrigerator, you'll notice at once that all the models are up-on-legs. This means an easy job cleaning under them. And it also means that all the machinery is safely sealed away in the air-tight steel casing which you see on top of the cabinet.

Look inside. Is there really ample food space? You will find in the General Electric Refrigerator that the chilling chamber is amazingly compact. It actually takes little more space than the trays in which your ice is frozen.

Then listen. This you must do. We want you to judge for yourself the quietness with which the General Electric Refrigerator operates.

All these things are vitally important. But be sure to consider, too, the organization which makes it. The General Electric Refrigerator is the product of fifteen years of research in the laboratories of General Electric.

Come in and see the many models. Notice their absolute simplicity. Make comparisons with other refrigerators. If you write us, we will be glad to send you a booklet which gives complete descriptions of the various models.

Elder Fathers are Assembling in Kansas City.

BATTLES LOOM

Delegate Contests From Seven States and One Territory.

By George R. Holmes.
KANSAS CITY, June 2.—The elder fathers of the Republican party began assembling in Kansas City today, ten days in advance of the convention, for the quadrennial task of deciding who's who among the quarrelsome Republican office-holders of the always Democratic south.

Settlement of factional differences in southern states before the convention has become as fixed an event as the convention itself. This year the contests have been brought from seven states and one territory, and involve some 69 seats in the convention. The full National committee meets Monday morning to act as judge and jury in the proceedings.

This year, for the first time since the historic contests of 1912 between the Taft and Roosevelt delegates, the quadrennial fights may conceivably have an important bearing on the nomination. Hoover delegates are involved in nearly every one of the 69 contests. Should these delegates lose out to any appreciable degree the effect may be all-important, for the Hoover managers have had to take a lot of things for granted in making their claims of a nomination within three ballots.

Texas is Good Example.
Texas affords a good example of this year's contests. The entire delegation of 26 votes is affected. On the one side is R. B. Creager, national committeeman, who was among the earliest to find a seat on the Hoover bandwagon. The Creager delegates are for Hoover all down the line. On the other side are Representative Wurzbach, the only Republican congressman from Texas, and C. C. Littleton of Ft. Worth, who are leading an unopposed delegation of 26 that are not pledged to anything, but are known to be against Hoover.

The Littleton-Wurzbach faction stole a march on Creager by beating him to the filing, which put Creager in the role of challenger.

Mississippi and Louisiana also provide contests involving the full state states. Each state has 12 delegates. One Louisiana faction is headed by Emil Kuntz, national committeeman, who was only a minute behind Creager in getting aboard the Hoover bandwagon weeks ago. The other faction is led by Walter Cohen, the Negro controller of customs in New Orleans. Long a power in Republican affairs of the state, Cohen is heading an unopposed delegation that leans strongly toward Frank O. Lowden.

The old "Lily white and black-and-tan" fight bobs up again in the Mississippi contests, and again involves the Hoover-Lowden fight. Perry Howard, the Negro national committeeman, was shown by the senate investigation to have received $2,000 of Hoover money, heads a Hoover-instructed delegation. Opposing him is a Lily-white outfit headed by George B. Sheldon, an ex-governor of Nebraska, now resident in Mississippi, and Charles U. Gordon, head of the Southern Tariff League.

Size-Up of Contests
The other contests are:
Florida—Nine delegates. One faction led by Ex-Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman of Illinois, is pledged to Hoover; the other by George W. Bean, the national committeeman, is unopposed but leans to Lowden or Dawes.

Georgia—Three delegates—The entire delegation of 16 has been credited to Hoover, but a fight is being made on Ben Davis, the Negro national committeeman, who has shown by the senate investigation to have received $2,200 of Hoover money.

Kentucky—Two delegates—A dispute in the first district led to the bringing of this contest.

Tennessee—Four delegates—The Hoover delegates in the third and tenth districts have been challenged by unopposed delegates.

Porto Rico and Alaska, each having two delegates, are also expected to thresh out factional differences next week.

The loss of any of these delegates—particularly the delegations from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi, would constitute a severe blow to the Hoover camp. An even 50 votes are involved in these three states, and 50 votes are no inconsiderable factor in any nomination. It would be particularly depressing for the Hoover leaders just at this time when they are claiming enough votes to nominate in the first three ballots and are now assiduously looking for enough votes to justify the claim.

E. T. MEREDITH IS NEAR DEATH

Iowan, Former Wilson Cabinet Member, Critically Ill.

DES MOINES, Ia., June 2.—Edwin T. Meredith, secretary of agriculture in President Wilson's cabinet, was believed near death at his home here today.

Dr. A. C. Page reported, "he is critically ill."

The former secretary, in private life president of the Meredith Publishing company, is suffering from high blood pressure and complications.

SEES HOOVER AS G. O. P. NOMINEE

KANSAS CITY, June 2.—The gathering storm of an agricultural revolt in the west hasn't feared the confidence of Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work that his cabinet colleague, Herbert Hoover, will be nominated for the presidency and elected.

In Kansas City today conferring with Hoover managers, Dr. Work declared:

"The campaign is all over. All we have to do is to ballot and then count the votes. The work is all done."

Work dismissed the "farmers' revolt" with a wave of his hand. "It's the work of Democrats," he said. "The original committee of 22 that started the whole business was composed of nineteen Democrats and three Republicans."

SMITH FACES ANOTHER TEST

Al's Supporter in Contest in North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., June 2.—Another test of Gov. Al Smith's popularity in North Carolina was to be furnished today in the state primary, one of the most apathetic in years.

In the second congressional district, Representative John H. Kerr, a Smith supporter, was opposed for renomination by two anti-Smith men, O. P. Dickinson and H. G. Robertson. In replying to a questionnaire, Kerr was the only member of the congressional delegation to advocate Smith's nomination at Houston.

Only two state wide contests and races in five of the 10 congressional districts were to be decided.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 2.—West Virginia will send divided delegations to the Republican and Democratic conventions.

This much was assured today as returns continued to drift in from Tuesday's primary.

While losing the preference vote to Senator Guy D. Goff, Secretary of Commerce Hoover apparently has won at least six of the 19 delegates to Kansas City. Hoover claims four of the seven delegates-at-large, and Goff five, with two delegates appearing on both lists.

Ex-Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, who did not enter the race, appears to have picked up a few votes. Ex-Gov. Albert B. White and Walter Hallahan, both Lowden supporters, apparently have won in the delegate race.

Managers of Gov. Al Smith of New York, who defeated Senator James A. Reed for the Democratic preference, claimed 10 of the 16 delegates to Houston. A similar number was claimed by the Reed group which was backed by the Anti-Saloon league and W. C. T. U.

However, ex-Senator Clyde B. Johnson, and Mrs. J. W. Barnes, president of the state W. C. T. U., who are leading in the delegate at large contest, have announced they would support a dry, indicating they might vote for Representative Cordell Hull, of Tennessee.

BERNSTEIN MAY SEEK STATE PLACE

CLEVELAND, June 2.—That United States District Attorney A. E. Bernstein may enter the Ohio gubernatorial race this year was indicated today when it was learned that he had requested the secretary of state's office at Columbus to send filing blanks for the Republican nomination for governor or to Cleveland.

While Bernstein refused direct comment on his request, close friends declared he had been considering entering the race for some time.

Week-end rest in Stewart Trial.

FARMERS READY FOR MARCH ON KANSAS CITY

Leaders of Corn Belt States Seek Tariff Aid.

DRAFT DEMANDS

Ask Nomination of Mid-western Man for President.

CHICAGO, June 2.—Political leaders of the corn belt and adjoining farm states assembled in Chicago today to lay plans for a march of thousands of farmers on the Republican national convention at Kansas City to demand farm relief legislation.

Representatives of fourteen states had arrived in Chicago early today for the conference, called by M. J. Tobin, of Vinton, Ia., a supporter of former Governor Frank O. Lowden, of Illinois, for president.

The movement includes adherents of Gov. Lowden, Senator James E. Watson of Indiana and Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas City, all candidates for the presidential nomination.

Leaders of the farm brigade will demand the Republican national convention two things:

Nomination of a mid-western man for president.

A party pledge to make the tariff effective on farm products.

"This is legislation that the representatives of the people twice have said they wanted," Gov. Adam McMullen of Nebraska, one of the early arrivals for the conference, said today. "We are not urging that labor's protection under the immigration law be weakened or that protection be given the railroads, the banks and business generally be modified."

L. W. ROSSKOPF DIES IN EAST

Pioneer in Chain Store Was Ross Chief-tain.

Louis W. Rosskopf, 54, pioneer in the chain store field, died May 28 at Lenox Hill hospital in New York after being confined there but a few days for treatment for illness that gave no appearance of being serious.

Born in Narrowsburg, N. Y., March 17, 1874, Mr. Rosskopf was during his life identified with numerous prominent mercantile enterprises throughout the east, and at his death was head of the Ross Stores, Inc., chain of department stores.

Early in his life he began to visualize the advantages and possibilities of chain store operation. And, though comparatively young in years when he died, he was the founder of several widely known chains of retail stores.

Mr. Rosskopf began his career in a small dry goods store in New Bedford, Mass., then home town.

TOILERS TO WEAR OLD STRAW HATS

CHICAGO, June 2.—The spectacle of thousands of farmers, garbed in overalls and straw hats, marching through the streets of Kansas City demanding agricultural relief, may feature the national Republican convention.

Mark Woods of Lincoln, Neb., in Chicago today to attend a meeting at which plans for the "march on Kansas City" will be made, declared the protesting toilers on the farms will swoop down on the convention city wearing old-fashioned straw hats—"the kind that used to cost a nickel and now brings fifty cents."

VITAPHONE AND MOVIE TONE WIN HEARERS

Two Theatres Offer Latest Innovations in Screen World.

SPECIAL FEATURE

Extraordinary Bills at Ceramic and American.

East Liverpool yesterday was introduced to motion pictures that talk.

Vitaphone, the most startling development in the silver sheet world, synchronizing perfectly voice and music with the action of the screen, installed at a cost of $21,000, was featured with Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer," at the Ceramic theatre yesterday afternoon and last night.

At the American theatre, the innovation was also presented in connection with the wonder dog, "Rin-Tin-Tin," in the picture, "Rinty of the Desert."

In addition to Vitaphone Movietone features were presented at each theatre.

Ceramic theatre-goers marveled as they heard Al Jolson, the famous black face comedian, sing "Mother I Still Have You," "Dirty Hands," "Mammy" and other vocal hits. And, too, they heard music by the 107-piece New York Philharmonic orchestra, and heard and saw Eddie Conrad and Marian Eddy in a comedy success.

The American theatre is showing Movietone news in addition to a Vitaphone picture and Vitaphone vaudeville which features Will Hays, "Czar" of the movie industry, Martinelli, and George Jessel. Movietone news depicts every noise, sound, song, talk or music that accompanies the action in a late newsreel of the happenings of the day.

The reel at the American tonight shows the Army anti-aircraft guns shooting at flying targets; Ambassador Herrick unveiling a monument to Xungesser, Colli and Lindbergh at Le Bourget, France, and his brief speech of presentation; a motorcycle hill-climb, picking girls for a Broadway revue with pulchritude swarming all over the shop; C. M. Schwab being presented the Bessemer medal; Paul Whiteman taring up his old contract on the stroke of twelve and beginning, with his orchestra, to record "My Ohio Home" for Columbia records; the roller coasters racing dizzily at Coney Island as youth shrieks with glee.

OPEN JOSEPH'S WOMEN'S STORE

"Joseph's," a store for women, today made its formal debut in local merchandising circles.

Carrying a complete line of ladies' dresses, ready-to-wear frocks, coats, lingerie and hosiery, the new establishment, located at 525 Washington street, just off sixth, opened its doors to trade this morning.

Proprietor of Joseph's announced that the store would operate in the popular priced field of ladies' wearing apparel, conducting their business according to their slogan, "We buy for cash and sell for cash," indicating there would be no charges or approvals.

Mrs. Neva Renouff, identified for a number of years with various East Liverpool establishments devoted chiefly to the sale of ladies' wear, will have direct charge of the new store.

The store has been equipped smartly throughout, with modern cases, fixtures and accessory needs to conform to requirements of the business. Attractive lighting fixtures provide adequate illumination. Clothing is well displayed. In the rear are two fitting rooms for trying on garments.

Baskets of flowers, gifts from friends of the establishment, bedecked the store on its opening day.

This country is building an all-metal dirigible, to be safe against lightning, dirigibles' greatest danger.

Sees 'Cal' President Again

James Lucey, the President's shoemaker, from a photo taken at his shop in Northampton, Mass., with an inset of Mr. Coolidge. Lucey predicts that "Cal" will run for the presidency again.

Calvin Coolidge will run again for president! His now famous "do not choose" speech will be disregarded for the good of the party.

Such is the prediction of James Lucey of Northampton, Mass., the president's shoemaker, who is credited by some folks as having "made" Mr. Coolidge in a political way.

When President and Mrs. Coolidge were in Northampton recently, Lucey met them and talked to them for a while. After the confab the shoemaker informed the reporters that he was virtually sure the nation's chief executive would run for office again.

"I feel," says Lucey, "that it's not exactly what he personally wants to do, but if they call for him strong enough, he'll be there, as he always has been."

So go out and make your bets accordingly!

ROUMANIA'S BOY KING SORRY FOR HIS ROYAL GRANDMOTHER

BUCHAREST—That King Mihai I of Roumania is much like any other little boy of six, was recently shown by a remark he made to his royal grandmother, Queen Marie.

He has been brought over to make a little call, kissed her with true boyish affection and then looked at the queen for a few minutes.

"Granny, you don't look very well; I think you need a beating up."

Everybody pondered over what the little king meant but with little success. He finally enlightened them by explaining that he thought her face needed a little massage!

Little Michel is very fond of his grandmother but seems to be much impressed by the difference in their ages.

"Granny," he mused not long ago, "it is really too bad you are getting so old."

Loughran Keeps His Title In 15-Round Session With Latzo

Pollock Hurls One-Hit Game Against Madisons

K. T. K. and Wellsville Battle to 1-1 Deadlock in Duel of Southpaws, Easton and Baker.

MISSING a no-hit, no-run game by the extremely narrow margin of one scratch bingle, Ray Pollock, twirling for Turk-Nash against the Madison Billiards last night at Columbus park, turned in one of the classic pitching performances of the season to stake the Motors to a 9-0 victory.

The conquest strengthens the Motors' grasp on second place and keeps them in a position to threaten the league leaders.

First Hagman Flint was the only opposition batter successful in reaching the sacks and he got there twice, once on a scratch single and once on an error. Eight fanned before Pollock's slants.

The Motors rapped Don Mackall for 12 safeties although errors of the Billiards' defense figured to a great extent in their downfall.

Turk Nash counted in the opening frame. Hunselman got on when Flint let Morris' toss get through him and scored on Desher's single. Desher made the circuit on Pollock's triple to center. Fowler's crew got another in the third. Hunselman lined to center for two stations and reached home on Desher's single to center.

Two More In Fourth. The Motors rapped Don Mackall for 12 safeties although errors of the Billiards' defense figured to a great extent in their downfall.

Yanks Primed To Fracture Tiger Streak

Hugmen Hit Detroit Today in First Western Trip.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, June 2.—The winning streak of the Detroit Tigers, who made a clean sweep of the Cleveland series by taking a 5 to 4 decision from the Indians yesterday, seems to be doomed to an untimely death in the very near future—for the world's champion New York Yankees hit Detroit today on their first western trip of the season. The champs are sporting the unprecedented percentage of .810 in the standing of the clubs, and every New York regular is hitting above .300.

The slipping Indians face the rejuvenated Red Sox today, Washington takes on St. Louis and the Athletics meet the White Sox.

The Boston Braves and the Phillies, supposedly weak sisters of the eastern division of the National League, gave the western invaders a stiff battle yesterday but both lost. The Cincinnati and Natty Cincy Reds, who had made only five home runs all season, shaded the Braves with the aid of three homers. Critz's four-bagger in the tenth gave the Reds a 7 to 6 verdict.

The Phillies finally got some good pitching when Shucks Pruett held the Cardinals to six hits. But as luck would have it, Art Reinhart of the Cards was in even better form and blanked the Quakers, 1 to 0. Friberg threw the game away by heaving a ball clear into the stands with two on base.

Sheriff Blake of the Cubs lost his first game in five starts when the Pirates kayoed him and won, 10 to 4. Grimes was a complete puzzle to the Cubs except in the sixth inning.

Although the Giants tried their best to lose the game by committing five errors, Larry Benton took a 4 to 3 decision over Jumbo Jim Elliott of the Brooklyn Robins. Benton has won eight games and the Giants have copied five straight.

Speed, Reach and Skill Too Much for Ex-Miner

Ex-welter Champ is Game, However, and Proves Tougher for Tommy to Beat Than Experts Predicted.

By Sid Mercer.

NEW YORK, June 2.—Tommy Loughran's crown rest jauntily on his head today after being exposed to the ponderous shots of Pete Latzo for fifteen rounds last night at Ebbets field.

The light heavyweight champion, a 3 to 1 favorite over the Scranton miner, did not win as easily as was anticipated, for Latzo's ceaseless aggressiveness carried several rounds. The former welterweight titleholder was strong and full of fight all the way and compelled Loughran to step lively and spear his way to the decision.

Loughran occasionally lapsed into Latzo's rough house style of milling and it was then that the challenger had his best and most inspirational moments. Pete's strength and weighty punches gave him an advantage in these exchanges but Loughran was smart enough to get out of Pete's groove and in the last four rounds cut Latzo down with vicious volleys of right hand smashes to the ribs.

Through binding barrages of left jabs and hooks, the challenger ploughed steadily for eleven rounds. His face was raw from contact with Loughran's leathering, but he persisted in his attack and managed to place four of these rounds to his credit.

Latzo Takes Eleventh.

Loughran seemed to tire from his efforts in fending Latzo's rushes. Chin-titling uppercuts and jarring rights to the head did not discourage the challenger, and finally Loughran switched his fire to the body and carried the last four rounds to outdistance his rival by a wide round margin.

Latzo carried the eleventh by rushes that seemed to tire Loughran, but then faded fast. The champion found his second wind after fighting himself into shape. By dropping his attack to the body, he came through with a real champion's finish.

Long rights thudded to Latzo's ribs and seemed to take more out of him in a round than all of the previous head massages. Tommy stuck to this style until the end and had Pete flounder in the last four rounds. However, the challenger never stopped trying. He certainly performed better than a 3 to 1 shot, but he was up against speed, science and a number of other handicaps. Loughran was half a head taller, had a much longer reach and was far more nimble than his pudgy opponent. He also outweighed Latzo, 173 1/2 to 168.

He certainly performed better than a 3 to 1 shot, but he was up against speed, science and a number of other handicaps. Loughran was half a head taller, had a much longer reach and was far more nimble than his pudgy opponent. He also outweighed Latzo, 173 1/2 to 168.

Loughran seemed to tire from his efforts in fending Latzo's rushes. Chin-titling uppercuts and jarring rights to the head did not discourage the challenger, and finally Loughran switched his fire to the body and carried the last four rounds to outdistance his rival by a wide round margin.

Latzo carried the eleventh by rushes that seemed to tire Loughran, but then faded fast. The champion found his second wind after fighting himself into shape. By dropping his attack to the body, he came through with a real champion's finish.

Long rights thudded to Latzo's ribs and seemed to take more out of him in a round than all of the previous head massages. Tommy stuck to this style until the end and had Pete flounder in the last four rounds. However, the challenger never stopped trying. The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle
Against Temptations

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

She could not see that it would. She had to be honest with herself. Her thought cast about in a panic, darting this way and that and finally was driven back upon itself. Changes might come about—anything happen.

Wait for fate to step in and rescue her; that was the only way.

Nevertheless when Kingdon Coles telephoned her at the shop she refused to see him.

He invited her for a drive and dinner at one of the inns up the Hudson, but she felt she shouldn't accept.

"I'm sorry, King. We're awfully busy right now."

"Let me come and help you. I'm a great little old decorator."

"Oh, no. Something I have to do tonight, really—"

He told her good-bye, offended, and she turned to see Frances Halden watching. She might think facts talking over the telephone to Kingdon Coles but she would have to tell Frances the truth. The sharp eyes demanded it.

"Mother thinks I ought to keep to my own," she began miserably. "King isn't my class. I'd better not see him any more."

"What is your class, my dear?"

"Well, I suppose Mary Nolan—"

"The red-haired boy with the bad manners? You think he's like you? Why don't you forget what you call 'class,' Emily?"

"Your constant fear of it—doesn't it strike you that's only inverted snobbery?"

"Who is it makes class? Certainly not those you dignify by that name. From what I've been able to observe they go their ways not b'othering much about the rest of the world. It's those who consider themselves underneath, the ones you'd call the 'mass' who draw fine social lines."

"They seem to believe the one on top are determined to push down and so they set about pushing up. The result is the whole arrangement distorted."

"Each has part of the world's work to do. Why can't they go along side by side and forget everything excepting that they're all human beings?"

"But some say—"

"Who are some, Emily? You have a good brain; why not think for yourself? There is no one, no matter what the relationship may be, with a right to dictate your thought. To do this is to steal individuality. That is a grave error."

Frances was thinking, Emily suspected, of Muz. Begging her to be herself. Yet there were things you couldn't hold out against—an old hand going up in a helpless way. She thought of Mary and the promise she had made.

As if in answer to that she saw him going slowly by the window. Anne Morrow was with him, smiling up at him. All her anger of the night before came searing back.

She turned abruptly to the telephone and gave the number of the newspaper where Kingdon Coles was employed. She intended to tell him she wasn't so busy after all an' that she'd enjoy a drive.

But he had left for the day.

Stella came through the hedge early in the evening. For the first time Emily noticed she no longer was plump. And she had left off rouging her cheeks and her eyes were very big in a white face.

"Want to go for a walk, dear? I'm just finishing the dishes—with you in a second—"

Stella nodded and went to the street to wait. The girls linked arms when they started out and it was then Emily saw her friend's hands clenched.

"Is it Skeets again, Stella? It only your forget—"

"Can't forget some things, Em. He—he hasn't seen me for nearly two weeks. Wouldn't answer when I telephoned. Rotten—oh, boys of his class—"

"Why do you think of class, dear? Not important, really," Emily tried to quote Frances Halden but it fell flat before Stella's fierce scorn.

"Who says it's not important? You think he'd treat girls of his own crowd this way? He's over calling on Bess Tournery; I went around there and saw him. I hate 'em all, Em," she burst out. "Your father was right. Act as if we were dirt under their feet. All alike—"

Emily said, "I don't know." She thought of Avis Row sister hysterically throwing herself at Mary Nolan; of Stella sneaking by the Tournery home to spy on Skeets. But she also thought of Kent.

CHAPTER 19.

Frances Halden invited Emily for dinner an evening or two later.

She felt the girl must be rescued from a warped viewpoint and went about it in the direct fashion which was a part of all she did.

She had no intention of allowing anything serious to develop between her small friend and Kingdon Coles. But she was convinced that life could not be shut out.

"Go and meet experience," she once told Emily. "Grapple with it. That's what makes a woman strong and brave."

And to herself she added, "Throw this exquisite child to that vulgarian with the hard jaw and the atavistic manner—tragedy! She must have a chance to know other things; find out what's true. I can show her a little."

She hummed to herself:

"For to admire and for to know,
For to be old this world so wide—"

And invited Emily for dinner. Wear the yellow frock, dear; the one with the frills."

"It's going to be a party, Frances?"

"I don't think so." Rather glib this was; in her present state of high resolution Emily would have refused a party. "It's a pretty frock and you never put it on."

Which was true enough. The dress was a copy of the one she had worn that night when Kent followed her into the garden; the night when they had stood above the river watching ships pass and he kissed her goodbye.

She loved the pale gold flounces, but kept them hung away. She felt almost that she must save the dress. That night could not return; never again would Kent sit beside her, smiling, saying with the small break in his voice that she was sweet.

Yet she dreamed of this; having the gown almost made it seem not altogether a dream.

She put it on tonight and called a taxi. An extravagance she considered that, but told herself she was entitled to something. As they spun through the River Road and on down Lowland Drive toward Great View she saw with a twinge of longing that this was another such night as the luminous one she remembered. The moon hung low on the river and rose hedges were fragrant all along the way.

Frances called to her from the garden to go in; she would follow shortly, she said. As Emily stepped into the drawing-room, not yet lighted, a tall figure came out of the shadows, took both her hands, bending over them.

A mysterious something about this of a thing only partly remembered; she caught her breath. But it vanished when the man spoke.

"Golden girl! How beautiful you are, Emily. Coming to me in the twilight—"

A shade too perfect. Kent could not have done that. She laughed and pulled on a lamp.

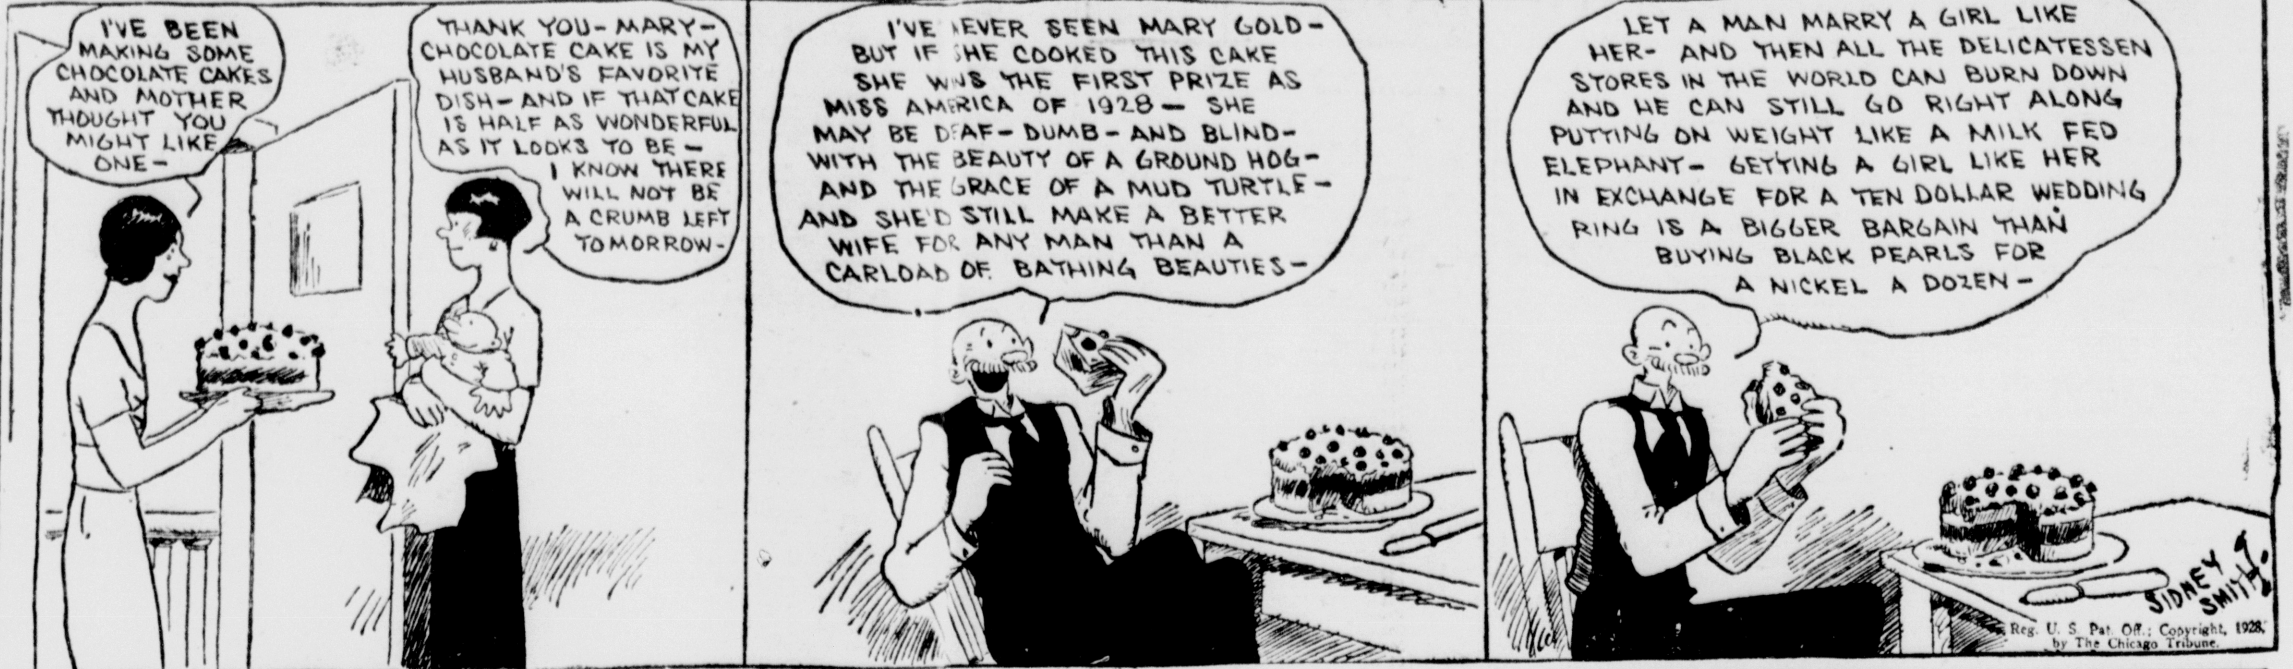

Still she was warmly conscious of his eyes throughout dinner. There were only the three of them under lighted candles and Frances managed to become a background.

Emily found herself being courted like a princess; openly adored. It thrilled her, rather; sent through her the pleasing glow of feeling that she was desired.

Afterward they sat on the terrace and watched the broad, bright roadway which led from the near shore straight across the river to the moon. Frances a bit apart, thoughtful and silent; Emily like a mist become human in her pale chiffon with her pale fluff of hair; Coles very romantic, all the sophistication rubbed out by the dim sheen, boyish and somehow sweet.

JUST KIDS

TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE "JUST KIDS" SAFETY CLUB: I have just completed three months of very strenuous work on the "Just Kids" Safety Club, and the response from all kids, old and young, has been most gratifying. I know you will be glad to hear that the Club has well over a million members throughout the United States, Canada, and New Zealand. It has undoubtedly saved the lives of many youngsters, judging from the reports of this year, compared with those of last. I wish that I could personally meet every member and the parents of each member.

There will be no further direct mention of the Club in this cartoon until next spring, so in the meantime don't forget your pledge: "REMEMBER TO LOOK UP AND DOWN BEFORE YOU CROSS THE STREET!"

And now my I wish you all happiness and safety until we get together again!

Sincerely,
Ad. Carter

CERAMIC TONIGHT

An Impressive Triumph At the Ceramic Last Night

The audiences applauded ecstatically. Never before in the history of the theatre has so sincere and so thunderous a storm of applause broken over a cinema as that which arrived at the conclusion last night of Al Jolson's movie, "The Jazz Singer" All that disappointed the people in the packed theatre seemed to be the fact that they could not call upon him or his image at least for an encore.
